

INTERIOR DESIGN®

MARCH 2019 breaking through the big idea issue

MARKET

special kitchen/bath section

edited by Rebecca Thienes
text by Mark McMenamin, Rebecca Thienes, and Wilson Barlow

a good ribbing

No longer monopolized by the construction trade, concrete has come into its own as a decorative medium. Kast Concrete Basins spurs the evolution with its second generation of Kast Canvas, a family of sinks enlivened by textural surface detail. Moving beyond the subtlety of the first edition, patterns in the new collection are more highly defined, practically sculptural, inviting an understated interaction between light and shadow. Among the newcomers: Otto, a counter-mounted basin encircled by diagonal ribs. Like the manufacturer's entire assortment, it's available in 28 tints, including Blush. kastconcretebasins.com ➤

down to earth

Natural tones and materials
elevate daily ablutions

1. Metal slabs in porcelain in Russet by Florim Ceramiche.
2. T39EL towel warmer in copper by Vola.
3. Bellia thermostatic/diverter control in brass in Rose Gold by Rohl.
4. MyEdition single-hole faucet in brass in Brushed Redgold by Axor.
5. Avalon 72 freestanding tub in Native-Stone jute-cement concrete in Earth by Native Trails.

See page 78 for sources. ➔